Terms and Definitions

Personally Identifiable Information. The term “personally identifiable information” in this Website means any information that could reasonably be used to identify you, including your name, address, e-mail address, IMVU account or member name, or any combination of information that could be used to identify you.

Information Voluntarily Provided to User. This Website may collect voluntary information from a user only through the e-mails that the user may send to this Website. E-mails sent by the user to this Website will contain personally identifiable information. While the Website allows comments providing only a name and e-mail address, the IP address is also logged when your message is transmitted (see below).

Information Automatically Collected and Stored by this Site. This site does not currently collect “cookies”, but does collect and store indefinitely the Internet Protocol (“IP”) address, (which does not identify the user as an individual), as well as information about the date and time of the users visit, whether a file the user has requested exists, and how many “bytes” of information were transmitted to the user over the Internet from this Website. SilkenKitty may use the IP address of the user to access the frequency of visits to this site and the popularity of its various pages and functions. The IP address may also be used to help prevent a high number of visits to this site and the popularity of its various pages and functions. SilkenKitty will not attempt to match any personally identifiable information that you provide to us with your IP address, unless there are reasonable grounds to believe that doing so would provide information that is relevant to violations defined herein and material to a civil or criminal investigation.

Security. Because this Website does not encrypt incoming e-mail, you should not send information that you consider highly sensitive through this Website. SilkenKitty may use software programs to monitor network traffic to identify unauthorized attempts to upload or change information, or otherwise cause damage. Except for authorized law enforcement investigations, no attempts are made to identify individual users or their usage habits.

Cookies are files that a Website can place on the user computer. A cookie file contains unique information that a Website can use to track such things as the password of the user, lists of web pages the user has visited, and the date when the user last looked at a specific web page or to identify the session of the user at a particular Website. A cookie file allows the Website to recognize the user as the user clicks through pages on the site and when the user later revisits the Website. A Website can use cookies to “remember” the preferences, and to record the browsing behavior on the Website. Although the user can prevent Websites from placing cookies on the computer of the user by using the browser’s preference menu, disabling cookies may affect the ability to view or interact with some Websites.

An “Internet Protocol Address” or “IP Address” is a series of numbers that identifies each computer and machine connected to the Internet. An IP address enables a server on a computer network to send the user the file the user has requested on the Internet. The IP address disclosed to SilkenKitty may identify the computer from which the user is accessing the Internet, or a server owned by the Internet Service Provider. Because it is machine-specific, rather than person-specific, an IP address is not, in and of itself, personally identifiable information.
